Application for Business Development Manager

Dear Jasper,

I have always said that I would apply the moment a vacancy came along where I could work with cars. This is that vacancy. Cars, motorsport and anything on wheels have been my biggest interest since I was a kid, and a company that runs the transport at Formula 1 weekends, Le Mans and MotoGP is the best place I can think of to bring that interest and my work together.

That is why I am writing. The reason to invite me is a different one.

You are looking for someone who identifies, initiates and executes improvement projects. That is what I have been doing for the past two years. At Van Rijn Products I started with graduation research on reducing lead time. I was then asked to carry it out myself, and as project lead I rolled out a new ERP system that 50 employees now work with. It saves the company 2 FTE. At Speed40 I have implemented 15 customers on AI-driven ERP software since November, from first conversation to aftercare. With my own company, Klaasystems, my automation runs at 5 businesses.

In each of those projects most of the work was in the transition on the shop floor. That is where I learned to call a plan finished only when the people who work with it can do so without me.

GoHammerhead works with 185 project managers in 50 countries and is still growing. Processes that worked last season will start to strain somewhere as you grow further, and I think that is exactly the work you describe. I would like to show you how I approach it.

I would be glad to come to Meppel to meet. It is a 50-minute drive from Wierden, and one I would happily make.

Kind regards,

Giel Klaas
